For Chief Operating Officer Engagement

Date	07 March 2026
Company	The Homeschooling Company Ltd, a company incorporated under the laws of England and Wales with its registered office at Bartle House, Oxford Court, Manchester, M2 3WQ (the "Company").
Assignee	Zoya Rasheed, residing at 133 Banda Lal Khan, Mansehra, Pakistan (the "Assignor" or "Intern").
Purpose	Backend Developer Intern under a separate 3-month internship agreement, working remotely from Pakistan for 40 hours per week over 5 days, unless otherwise agreed in writing.

1. Purpose and Scope

This Agreement confirms the ownership and assignment of intellectual property rights in all work, materials, ideas and deliverables created, developed, prepared, contributed to or supplied by the Assignor in connection with the Company, its business, the RightSteps platform, the Company's homeschooling platform, or any related product, service, operation, brand, commercial activity, technology, documentation or strategy.

This Agreement applies to all internship work performed by the Assignor before, on or after the date of this Agreement, unless the Parties have signed a separate written agreement expressly excluding specific materials.

This Agreement is intended to sit alongside the Assignor's internship agreement. If there is a conflict, the provision giving the Company stronger protection over intellectual property, confidentiality, data security or ownership shall apply, to the fullest extent permitted by law.

2. Definitions

Company IP means all intellectual property rights, materials, work product, rights, interests, inventions, improvements and deliverables owned by, assigned to, created for, or developed for the Company.

Deliverables means all backend development work and related outputs created for or contributed to the Company, including source code, APIs, database schemas, data models, server-side logic, technical notes, architecture documents, specifications, scripts, integrations, automation logic, test materials, documentation, AI prompts, configuration files, deployment notes, research, roadmaps, diagrams and any other work product.

Intellectual Property Rights means copyright, design rights, database rights, trade marks, trade secrets, know-how, rights in inventions, patents, moral rights, domain names, business names, rights in confidential information and all similar rights anywhere in the world, whether registered or unregistered.

Pre-Existing IP means materials owned or controlled by the Assignor before the engagement with the Company and not created for the Company.

3. Assignment of Intellectual Property

The Assignor assigns to the Company, with full title guarantee, all present and future Intellectual Property Rights in all Deliverables and Company IP created, developed, authored, designed, conceived, contributed to, discovered or reduced to practice by the Assignor, either alone or with others, in connection with the Company.

The assignment is absolute, worldwide, irrevocable and royalty-free.

The assignment includes the right for the Company to use, copy, modify, adapt, publish, commercialise, licence, sell, transfer, register, enforce and otherwise exploit the Company IP without further consent from or payment to the Assignor.

The assignment includes all rights of action, remedies and claims relating to past, present or future infringement, misuse or unauthorised use of the Company IP.

Where any rights cannot legally be assigned immediately, the Assignor grants the Company an exclusive, worldwide, perpetual, irrevocable, transferable, sublicensable, royalty-free licence to use and exploit those rights until assignment becomes possible.

4. Backend Development Work Covered

The work covered by this Agreement includes, without limitation:

- backend source code, repositories, branches, commits, pull requests, modules, libraries, functions, APIs, endpoints, authentication logic, authorisation logic and server-side application logic;
- database schemas, data structures, migrations, seed data, stored procedures, queries, indexing approaches, database documentation and data modelling materials;
- integration logic, third-party API connectors, webhooks, background jobs, queues, scheduled tasks, cloud configuration notes and deployment instructions;
- unit tests, integration tests, test scripts, test data, bug fixes, debugging notes, code review comments and technical recommendations;
- architecture diagrams, technical specifications, system design notes, security notes, documentation, runbooks and handover materials;
- all improvements, updates, variations, modifications or derivative works connected to the Company, RightSteps or the Company's homeschooling platform.

5. Future Inventions and Improvements

The Assignor must promptly disclose to the Company all ideas, inventions, improvements, discoveries, designs, processes, features, systems, methods, code, scripts, database structures or materials developed in connection with the Company's business, whether or not capable of registration.

All such items shall automatically form part of the Company IP and shall be assigned to the Company under this Agreement.

6. Pre-Existing IP

The Assignor must identify in writing any Pre-Existing IP before using it in any Company work.

If the Assignor incorporates Pre-Existing IP into any Deliverable without prior written disclosure and written approval from the Company, the Company may treat that material as assigned to the Company to the fullest extent permitted by law.

Where Pre-Existing IP is approved for inclusion in any Deliverable, the Assignor grants the Company a worldwide, perpetual, irrevocable, transferable, sublicensable, royalty-free licence to use, modify, commercialise and exploit that Pre-Existing IP as part of the relevant Deliverable or Company product.

7. Third-Party Materials and Open Source

The Assignor must not include third-party materials, open-source packages, stock assets, templates, code snippets, icons, fonts, images, libraries, AI-generated outputs or externally licensed content in any Deliverable unless the Assignor has disclosed this to the Company in writing and confirmed the applicable licence terms.

The Assignor warrants that third-party materials will not restrict the Company's ability to use, commercialise, modify, sell, licence or transfer the Deliverables.

The Assignor must provide details of all third-party licences, usage restrictions, attribution requirements and costs.

The Assignor must not introduce any material requiring the Company to disclose source code, publish proprietary assets, pay unapproved recurring fees, or accept restrictive licence terms.

8. AI Tools, Public Repositories and External Systems

The Assignor must not upload Company code, database information, product information, technical documentation, business information, personal data, confidential materials, prompts or deliverables into public AI tools, public code repositories, public forums, training datasets or unauthorised third-party platforms without the Company's prior written approval.

The Assignor must not use Company materials to train, fine-tune or improve any external AI model unless expressly authorised by the Company in writing.

The Assignor must keep all Company repositories, credentials, tokens, API keys, environment variables and access details secure and must immediately report any suspected compromise.

9. Moral Rights

To the fullest extent permitted by law, the Assignor waives all moral rights and similar rights in the Deliverables and Company IP.

Where such rights cannot legally be waived, the Assignor agrees not to assert them against the Company, its group companies, successors, assigns, investors, customers, licensees, contractors or partners.

10. Further Assurance

The Assignor must sign all documents and do all acts reasonably required by the Company to confirm, perfect, register, protect, enforce or transfer the Company IP.

If the Assignor fails to sign any required document within a reasonable period, the Assignor appoints the Company and its authorised representatives as attorney to sign such documents on the Assignor's behalf solely for the purpose of giving effect to this Agreement.

11. No Portfolio, Case Study or Reuse Rights

The Assignor must not use, publish, display, reuse, adapt, resell, licence or refer to the Company IP, Deliverables, Company name, RightSteps name, product concepts, backend architecture, source code, database designs, confidential materials or project details in any portfolio, case study, website, social media post, proposal, pitch, training material, template library, GitHub repository or work for another client without the Company's prior written consent.

12. Confidentiality

The Assignor must keep confidential all Company information, Company IP, Deliverables, business plans, technical information, source code, product concepts, customer information, user information, platform plans and commercial information.

This Agreement does not replace any separate non-disclosure agreement between the Parties. Where a separate non-disclosure agreement exists, both agreements shall apply. If there is conflict, the provision giving the Company stronger protection shall apply.

13. Data Protection and Security

Where the Assignor has access to personal data, customer data, parent data, child data, tutor data, employee data, supplier data or platform data, the Assignor must process such data only on the Company's documented instructions, keep it secure, and immediately report any actual or suspected unauthorised access, loss, disclosure or misuse.

The Assignor must not copy, export, retain, transfer or store Company data outside approved Company systems unless authorised in writing.

On request, and at the end of the internship, the Assignor must return or permanently delete all Company materials, access credentials, data, code, documentation and copies held by the Assignor, subject to any written instruction from the Company.

14. Warranties

The Assignor warrants that:

- a. the Assignor has full power and authority to enter into this Agreement;
- b. the Deliverables and Company IP assigned under this Agreement are original or properly licensed;
- c. the Deliverables do not knowingly infringe third-party rights;
- d. the Assignor has not assigned, licensed, pledged, transferred or otherwise restricted the Company IP in favour of any third party;
- e. the Assignor will not introduce hidden restrictions, malicious code, unauthorised dependencies, backdoors, credential leaks or undisclosed third-party rights into the Deliverables;
- f. the Assignor will not use the Company IP to develop, support or assist a competing product, business or service.

15. Indemnity

The Assignor shall indemnify the Company against all losses, damages, liabilities, claims, costs and expenses arising from breach of this Agreement, infringement or alleged infringement of third-party intellectual property rights, unauthorised use of third-party materials, misuse of Company IP, unauthorised disclosure of confidential information, malicious code, credential compromise caused by the Assignor, or breach of data protection and security obligations.

16. Consideration

The Assignor acknowledges that the opportunity to work with or for the Company as a Backend Developer Intern, training, supervision, access to Company systems, experience, any payment or other consideration provided under any related engagement, and the mutual promises in this Agreement are sufficient consideration for the assignments and obligations in this Agreement.

17. Relationship with Internship Agreement

Nothing in this Agreement creates a separate employment relationship, partnership, agency or joint venture between the Parties. The Assignor's working relationship with the Company is governed by the separate internship agreement.

This Agreement does not guarantee permanent employment, paid employment, extension of the internship, or any future role with the Company.

18. Assignment by the Company

The Company may assign, transfer, license or novate this Agreement and the Company IP to any successor, buyer, investor, group company, affiliate, lender, licensee or related entity. The Assignor may not assign or transfer this Agreement without the Company's prior written consent.

19. Term and Survival

This Agreement takes effect from the date stated above and applies to all relevant work created before, on or after that date in connection with the Company, unless expressly excluded in writing.

The intellectual property assignment, confidentiality, moral rights waiver, portfolio restriction, indemnity, warranties, further assurance, data protection, security and governing law provisions shall survive termination of any internship or engagement and continue for as long as legally enforceable.

20. Remedies

The Assignor acknowledges that breach of this Agreement may cause serious and irreparable harm to the Company. The Company may seek injunctive relief, specific performance, damages, legal costs and any other remedies available under law. The Company does not need to prove actual financial loss to seek urgent injunctive relief.

21. Entire Agreement

This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the Parties regarding intellectual property ownership and assignment relating to the subject matter of this Agreement. It supersedes prior discussions or understandings on that subject. Any change must be made in writing and signed by both Parties.

22. Governing Law and Jurisdiction

This Agreement shall be governed by and interpreted in accordance with the laws of England and Wales. The courts of England and Wales shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising out of or in connection with this Agreement.

The Assignor agrees that the Company may seek interim, injunctive or enforcement relief in any jurisdiction where the Assignor resides, operates, holds assets or where a breach occurs, including Pakistan where applicable.

23. Electronic Signature

This Agreement may be signed electronically. Electronic signatures, scanned signatures and signed PDF copies shall have the same legal effect as original signatures.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Parties have executed this Agreement as of the date first above written.
